Clerk Brown Commemorates U.S. Constitution Day Speaking to Students about the Importance of the Great Document

Honorable Dorothy Brown, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Cook County, poses with students at the Illinois Center for Broadcasting-Chicago campus after she shared with them what the U.S. Constitution means to her. Clerk Brown was invited to speak in honor of Constitution Day 2010. She expressed her high regard for the foresight of the framers of the Constitution, pointing to the fact that the document continues to endure over centuries and the growth of a nation, yet still remains as the foremost guide that shapes our country's laws and the lives of its people. The Illinois Centers for Broadcasting teaches all aspects of broadcasting through an intensive, hands-on program instructed by the industry's top professionals.
